The exhibition presents 12 design projects for a „Dance Theater in Split“ from a Master-Design-Course of the Technical University of Darmstadt under the guidance of Prof. Helena Paver-Njiric.

The site for the design project „Dance Theatre Split“ is located in the south-east corner of the ancient Diocletian-Palace. Characterized by its heterogeneous structure, this particular area is of great significance for the whole of the city. In designing a project here, ideas regarding both semantic-historical insertion and the spatial-structural context are of equal importance. The projects were asked to seek critical positions to the site's history and new interpretations of its unique inheritance from the antique.
